Rita's Monthly Gardening Tip! November 2007 – Houseplants

November 2007 - Houseplants

Plants are good for the air you breathe. They absorb airborne pollutants and keep humidity at proper levels. Plants not only improve the air quality, but they also help your mood and sense of well-being. This is a great time of year to beautify your indoor surroundings. The Farm has many beautiful houseplants for sale made by the kids and all proceeds go back into the greenhouse education project. With the holidays coming up don't forget that plants make great gifts and you'll be giving the gift of support to the Farm at the same time.
